1. Prior to the election of new committee members of the Tientsin Soviet Citizens' Association, sharp disagreement over the candidates arose between the Russian and Jewish factions in the Association. Serebrennikov heads the Russian group and Rodovsky the Jewish. The latter group is the more powerful as its members command the financial situation of the Association. Although the Soviet Consulate could not openly interfere, it drew up a coalition list from which the candidates had to be chosen.

2. On 20 December the votes for the committee members were counted and it was found that Selesnev had been elected. On 21 December, however, the Consul General announced that because of Selesnev's youth, he would be named vice-chairman and Rodevsky would retain his position as chairman.

	Note: Names of the new committee members were published in the Tientsin Novosti Daily for 27 December 1947. This information has also been reported
